Now she lay on the bunk, her feet sprawled carelessly in front of her. She slowly shook her head back and forth. "Most of them." I hardly ever won, but then I liked to play games with outrageous risks. The clerk had the license with his name on it, Barry Riordan, right there in her hand. She inserted it, sticker dangling from his fingertip. . . . purse and a notepad. She reminded me quite a lot of Desmond. "What are you still doing here, Miss." "You're right," he said. "What we need is a pilot, and that pilot is Commander Weinstein. Which presents problems legally, if nothing else. He's the captain of a ship and should not leave it. That's what kept him on the Edgar in the first place. But he did have a lot of training on the lander simulator back when he was so sure he'd be picked for the ground team. You know Winey, always the instinct to be the one-man show. So if he thought he could do it, he'd be down here in a minute to bail us out and grab the publicity. I understand they're trying to work out a heat-shield parachute system from one of the drop capsules that were supposed to ferry down supplies to us during the stay here. But it's very risky. You don't modify an aerodynamic design lightly, not one that's supposed to hit the atmosphere at ten thousand-plus kilometers. So I think we can rule that out." "I'm pretty sure he didn't. I asked him about it. He said there was nothing to worry about, it would pass. And it did." Baird Searles is part owner of New York City's Science Fiction Shop and has been keeping track of. She came to him then, almost as though the stirring had been a silent summons, came like a brown. into the slot of a gray machine which responded with an authoritative chunk. She twirled it idly as she spoke. . . . to herself, sleeping in the catamaran moored beside the bank across the river and not even venturing into. "What do they say on the Burroughs?" McKillian asked, tossing her helmet on the floor and squatting tiredly against the wall. The lander was not the most comfortable place to hold a meeting; all the couches were mounted horizontally since their purpose was cushioning the acceleration of landing and takeoff. With the ship sitting on its tail, this made ninety per cent of the space in the lander useless. They were all gathered on the circular bulkhead at the rear of the lifestream, just forward of the fuel tank. . . . of slow-burning leaves.
